HOROSCOPE by Jacqueline

Are you getting tired of all the changes that have been transpiring? Well, relax because it will hit its peak this month with that nasty Mercury retrograde going direct on the 9th, and the Void of Course New Moon on the 14th; we'll be on the down slide. However, it'll feel like it's not going fast enough for you when Venus-conjunct-Saturn goes retrograde on the 27th and the full moon arrives on the 29th. Relax; this is not a time for urgency. All will be done in its right time and will be to the benefit of all in the greater scheme of life.

Aries March 23 - April 22 Your social skills are coming out this month. Whether it's throwing a social event or planning a business meeting, you'll be the one in the spotlight. Use it to your advantage. You'll find new opportunities that will be to your benefit in both business and your personal lives.

Taurus April 23 - May 22 You'll be balancing responsibilities and opportunities this month. Try not to let one win over the other. With the Mercury retrograde on the 9th you'll have to take more time than what you had planned to accomplish your tasks. Relax, you'll catch up. Your life is making a change and there's no hiding. Know it's all for the better.

Gemini May 23 - June 22 Now aren't you glad June is over! Finally you have a chance to breathe again. Life is slowing down and giving you the opportunity to do a little research or catch up on some things you've set aside. A financial situation will require your attention. Take your time looking for the best solution.

Cancer June 23 - July 22 Happy Solar Return! You'll be looking for others to be more responsible instead of you having to carry the burden. Look outside your normal group for support and be open to the unique or different; you'll be surprised at the results. This is a time to change your normal routine. Go with the flow and see where it all lands.

Leo July 23 - August 22 You are now in the final phase of the restrictions that have been placed upon you. Slow and steady wins the race. This is not the time to be the leader, but to find your path within the masses. Don't forget to take some time to allow the child within to come out and play. This will be your refuge.

Virgo August 23 - September 22 This is a month to physically build and grow. The first of the month is your planning stage. After the Void of Course full moon on the 14th, start to physically make it happen. Don't worry if things don't go the way you planned. It's making the natural corrections along the way. Trust me; you'll be happy with the finished product.

Libra September 23 - October 22 You're more passionate and impatient than usual right now, which helps you in making decisions. You have a lot of choices this month; however, don't be hasty in deciding on the first thing. Your time restrictions are false and if you search for the right thing, you'll find it and have fewer regrets in the future.

Scorpio October 23 - November 22 You're keyword for this month is choice. It may be a difficult path right now, picking which is the lesser of two greater evils, but you usually do best under pressure. The New Moon on the 14th will guide you in using your intuitive side to make the right decision. Keep in mind the words "no fear" and you'll be guided in the right direction even though it may not look like it at the time.

Sagittarius November 23 - December 22 Make your plans before the New Moon on the 14th and accomplish them after that, especially in your personal life. You're learning how to follow through to the end and that everything has its right time. Listen to your friends and loved ones now, but don't come to a conclusion regarding the circumstances until next month.

Capricorn December 23 - January 22 You're at the halfway point in your year and you find your head and heart in conflict. Remember, this is the year for you to succeed through your artistic and creative abilities. Your success lies within keeping to the path you've chose, even though you may find it a little challenging right now.

Aquarius January 23 - February 22 Finally everything comes to a head the beginning of this month. The sudden changes that have taken place will come to an end. Now is the time to put everything back into place. However, you must go with the flow and live in the moment. Things may not go the way you're anticipating, but they will turn out right.

Pisces February 23 - March 22 While everyone else is getting caught up in the changes that are going on now, you're settling into your peace and harmony. Your clarity is high this month, so take note. Know who your friends and supporters are, and who is not. Allow what doesn't serve you to disappear and spend more time enjoying the company of your true friends. ▼

For those who want to know: The planet Mars rules our actions. If it is close enough to the Earth or with a telescope, it appears to be red. This is because it is ruled by the first of the fire signs, Aries. Last month Mars was in its natural sign Aries and it brought us to be accident prone and gave urgency to our life. This month our actions become more grounded, because it's now in Taurus, which allows us to follow our personal values and beliefs to achieve our highest goals.

First off we need to apologize to the first week's competitors at REBAR Idol – we were out of town and failed to make sure someone was there to take pics. We got the other three weeks and next month we'll have pictures of the winners. Velvet Lenor has been doing a great job keeping the contest moving and the ever-changing roster of judges. The celebrity judge for the last preliminary was none other than Josh Zuckerman. He stopped in after his concert at Riverside Theatre in Vero and not only judged but performed a number, too! You never know what treat's in store for you at REBAR in Port St. Lucie.

Spiritually Speaking

Closets are confining. Closets are dark. Closets are meant for clothes, not people. Jesus speaks of light and darkness in the Gospels. The light of a lamp is not to be hidden, but placed where all can see and benefit from the light. He compares our eyes: 'our ability to see and perceive light,' as the lamp of our being. If our eyes are healthy we are full of light; if not, we are full of darkness.

The darkness of the closet can be ambiguous, obscure, and oblivious. But, light is revealing, hopeful, and enlightening. One cannot perceive light unless they have eyes to see; and then if there is light, they can see. Spiritually, light represents God's wisdom and knowledge, and the eyes our capacity to spiritually discern and understand God's revelation. If our sight is distorted, we cannot clearly see or understand reality.

I am afraid we live in a world of darkness whose vision is distorted and therefore blinded to social justice, civilized tolerance, and commonsense open-mindedness. The gay community has struggled for thousands of years to survive hatred, persecution, and capital punishment. We continue to fight for our right to exist. We continue to emerge from a closet-history of radicalism, discrimination, and repulsion.

Consider the story Queen Esther; a closet queen if ever there was one, but she was not lesbian, she was Jewish living as an exile in a foreign land. Esther lived in Persia along with many Jews whose families had been taken captive in the Babylonian captivity a hundred years earlier. By the time of this story, Babylon, in turn, had been conquered by the Persians. As an orphan, Esther grew up in the home of her cousin Mordecai until she won favor with the king and became queen. Of course, all the while her true Jewish identity was kept hidden. Hadassah was her real name. But, like many, she assimilated into the surrounding culture to avoid persecution.

One day, a plot was brought to Esther's attention; a plot intending to kill all the Jews in the empire. When the news reached Esther, she knew the stakes were high. She knew she had much to lose by revealing her true identity. She would risk her life and approach the king, an absolute monarch, to inform him of this conspiracy, or the lives of many innocents would be slaughtered.

She could have, in that moment of crisis continued to hide. But, she publicly became one of her people in order to save them. She had to come out of her 'closet' of convenient concealment to effect the redemption of her nation. Esther proclaimed herself a part of her people, and in so doing, she achieved wholeness and salvation for herself and for countless others.

I see in the story of Queen Esther a call for political action; a call that goes out to the gay community— some who are still closeted, some who are inactive, unvocal, non-supporting of their own people. If we are to survive the persecution and prejudices that threaten us, then we need to unite in solidarity and pride. We must personally identify with the oppressed, in order to bring liberation and significance to light. We need people of integrity and courage to stand up and speak out.

Queen Esther came out of her closet— not of sexual orientation— but of ethnic and religious identity, for a noble cause: not of saving her own skin, but of saving her entire people from extermination. This is the stuff of true heroism and courage. This is the true light that God shines into our hearts to illumine all, not just a few.

The 'lamp' Jesus refers to that provides light is a lamp of illumination, or as the Aramaic word points to, a 'visionary state' in which our sense of boundaries and consciousness are expanded greatly. When will we all see that God's light does not exclude people from justice and mercy? God's light is all-inclusive and all-embracing. This is the Light that dispels darkness and evil, hatred and ruthlessness, injustice and intolerance in our world.

As Glinda, the Good Witch of the North says to the munchkins in The Wizard of Oz: "Come out, come out, wherever you are!" So God challenges and invites us today to leave darkened closets— to be Bearers of the Light to a world of obscurity... I trust we shall heed the invitation...Amen. ▼

In Our Past

by Celeste DeRoche, Ph.D.

[Celeste was called away on a family emergency so we are re-running her July 2006 column. Celeste promises a new column for August, ed.]

PEARL M. HART

The Fourth of July always makes me think of the United States Constitution. Okay, I know I am a little strange, but it is one of those documents that we tend to take for granted until we really need it. It is also one of those documents that is easy to forget about until folks like Senator Bill Frist decide that it should be used as a means of exclusion, instead of inclusion as it has historically always been used.

The lesbian, bi-sexual, transgendered and gay communities are fortunate that at this juncture in the early twenty first century we have entire organizations dedicated to ensuring that GLBT persons are as included in the protections the U. S. Constitution offers an any other citizen. This was not always the case. In the not so distant past it was up to individuals to zealously guard and actively advocate for protection under the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

We are extremely fortunate in our history that such persons of courage and distinction were present. One of the most important forebears for organizations like the Human Rights Campaign and the Lambda Legal Defense Fund was lawyer Pearl M. Hart.

Born Pearly Minne Harchovsky, Pearl M. Hart was known all of her life as "Hart". She was called Hart but was known for her large "heart" and dedication to defending the rights of "the least lucrative and most oppressed kind of clients" namely, children, women, immigrants and gay men and lesbians.

Hart practiced law in the city of Chicago from 1914 to 1975. She was one of the first female attorneys in the city to specialize in criminal law. Hart attended the night-school program at Chicago's John Marshall Law School in 1911, earning her tuition by working during the day as a law clerk and stenographer. She graduated in 1914 and was admitted to the Illinois Bar on October 7 of that same year and began to build her criminal law practice.

Her early legal career focused on the needs of children. She was regarded as an expert on juvenile justice and drafted legislation, served on committees, and spoke before a variety of civic groups, all in her dedicated effort to protect Chicago's most vulnerable citizens.

In the 1950s, Hart devoted increased time to defending individuals accused of subversions against the U.S. government. The three major laws under which her clients were prosecuted were the Alien Registration Act of 1940, the Internal Security Act of 1950, and the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952. (In these days of heated debate over immigration and the rights of immigrants as well as personal civil liberties under life with Homeland Security, Hart would probably feel all too at home in the U.S. of 2006.)

Hart's most prominent case from this era was U.S. v. Witkovich. George Witkovich received an order of deportation on June 15, 1953. In a subsequent hearing before the Immigration and Naturalization Service, he was asked twenty-two questions about his activities and affiliations. On Hart's advice, he refused to answer the questions because they were not relevant to whether or not he should be deported. The United States filed a lawsuit compelling his answers, and Hart countered with an appeal that eventually made its way to the U.S. Supreme Court. She won the case in 1957.

In the final two decades of her life she became directly involved with the gay and lesbian community, although she had represented many gays in court before that time. She probably felt freer to express her own lesbian sexuality only after the death of her parents. She was extremely close to her large extended family but kept her relationships with women hidden from them, never openly identifying as lesbian.

Yet this did not prohibit her activism on behalf of the lesbian and gay communities. She co founded the Mattachine Midwest, which had its first public meeting on July 27, 1965. She served as its legal counsel until her death. In addressing one of the early meetings of the group, she urged the members to stop viewing themselves as members of a minority and assert the equal rights which are guaranteed to them by the Constitution. Her advocacy for her gay male clients arrested for soliciting sex in a public place, those entrapped to do so, and those caught in the crossfire of a bar raid, earned her the nickname, "Guardian Angel of Chicago's Gay Community."

On the fiftieth anniversary of her graduation from the John Marshall Law School she was accorded an honorary doctor of law degree. The City of Chicago honored Hart twice, posthumously. In 1992 she was chosen to be inducted into the Chicago Gay and Lesbian Hall of Fame. In 2001 Hart was the recipient of a Chicago Tribute Marker of Distinction.

The Bill of Rights was Pearl Hart's moral compass. She practiced law the way she lived her life with compassion, integrity and an unwavering passion for social justice.

This 4th of July, in whatever way you celebrate, light a sparkler for the life of Pearl Hart who did so much to illuminate the lives of our people. ▼

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30, 2007 – Kimpton Hotels, recently named Best Hotel Collection 2007 by media company PlanetOut Inc., will celebrate by offering guests a 15 percent discount on their stay. Beginning June 1, the Summer of Pride discounted rate will be available in eight cities nationwide: Boston, Chicago, Denver, New York, San Diego, San Francisco, Scottsdale, and Washington DC. When booking use the rate code PRD. The rate will be offered through June or September depending on city, and are subject to availability. For a complete list of hotels hosting Pride Parties and offering Summer of Pride discounts, visit www.KimptonHotels.com/lgbt or call 1-800-KIMPTON.

ORLANDO According to a June 15 article in the Orlando Sentinel by Christine Dellert, state Rep. D. Alan Hays told members of an AIDS health-care group that his gay cousin died after contracting AIDS and deserved his fate. According to the article, two nurses and a regional manager from Positive Healthcare, say the Umatilla Republican leaned across his desk and said his cousin was “as queer as a three-dollar bill” and “had that homosexual lifestyle and deserved what he got.”

Hays, a retired dentist, has denied the slur. “That is totally incorrect,” he said from Tallahassee. “I did tell them that I had a cousin that died [of AIDS]. . . . To assert that I said they get what they deserve is just beyond comprehension,” he said. Hays said his cousin died of AIDS about a decade ago.

Lisa Apple, a nurse with Positive Healthcare, said she was in Hays’ office when he made the comments. “I thought: ‘Oh, no. No, no, no. That’s not the way we see things,’” she said. “I feel like I’ve gone back 20 years. . . . Are you saying to me that this is a population that may or may not deserve this care because of their sexuality?” Ron Haberle, a Positive Healthcare regional manager, also attended the meeting with Hays and said the legislator’s words were insensitive, not empathetic. “It’s a devaluing statement,” he said. “Nobody deserves AIDS -- nobody.”

ST. PETERSBURG Equality Florida announced that James Harper of Tampa has joined their Board of Directors. Jim is well known in the Tampa Bay area as founding president of the organization that produces the Tampa International Gay & Lesbian Film Festival – among the largest such festivals in the nation. Jim also was instrumental in ensuring the survival of The Center of Tampa Bay, the area’s LGBT community center by leading the organization into a merger with the Metropolitan Charities. Jim worked as a reporter, editor and columnist for the St. Petersburg Times for 24 years. He later was editor of the area’s largest alternative newspaper, Creative Loafing. He now works as a freelance writer and communications advisor.

Equality Florida is the state’s only statewide education and advocacy organization focused on securing equality and justice for LGBT Floridians.

July 22 is the Space Coast Progressive Alliance's third annual Progressive Fest. This year it's at the Eau Gallie Community Center from 1 to 5 pm with a rummage sale starting at 11 am. For those not familiar with SCPA, it's a coalition of progressive people and groups and the festival attracts around 300 people to get information at numerous tables representing a wide gamut of organizations, good entertainment and networking opportunities with other progressive people. For more information, check out their web site at www.SpaceCoast-ProgressiveAlliance.org

I hope you didn't miss Compass GLCC's Stonewall Ball where they honored Palm Beach County Tax Collector, Anne M. Gannon, with the Plakas Leadership Award for her long history of inclusive leadership for social justice issues. As a lobbyist in the early 1990's, Ms. Gannon has been an advocate in the work to end HIV/AIDS, protecting individuals from stringent reporting measures which would deter people from being tested. She also helped to defeat a bill in the Florida House that would track and trace those living with HIV without providing funds to assist those who need help. As a Florida legislator, Ms. Gannon was well known for her support of women's equal rights, women's reproductive rights, as well as an advocate for victims of sexual violence. She has also supported minority communities through programs for starting minority owned businesses. Ms. Gannon served on the Palm Beach County Human Rights Council helping to secure inclusive non-discrimination policies throughout cities and government agencies in the county. Always the highlight of June in Palm Beach The Stonewall Ball is something everyone in the Palm Beaches should make it a point to attend.

There's a new energy at Kashmir in West Palm Beach kicking off with DJ Oren Nizri will be spinning on Saturday June 30 in a theme party named "CIRCUIT PARTY SATURDAY". He will be back in August at Kashmir and will be spinning in special Saturday dance party events on an on-going basis. Gary and the Kashmir gang are working on new and different high energy events for the dance bar in West Palm, where it's always a party!

Gay Rights Tidbit: Rick Stafford, chair of the Democratic National Committee's LGBT Caucus, marked PRIDE Month by applauding the strong leadership of Democrats across America, who have demonstrated the Democratic Party's commitment to equality for all Americans by working to end hate crimes, eliminate discrimination in the workplace and promote equality for all of our families. Stafford noted, "As we celebrate PRIDE Month this year, Democrats across America are putting our commitment to a more fair and just America into action. Last year, President Bush marked PRIDE month by using the Rose Garden to launch a divisive and discriminatory federal marriage amendment that targeted the LGBT community for political gain. But this year, Democrats up and down the ticket and all across the country are working to create an America that respects the rights and dignity of every American.

"All across our country—from Alabama to Arkansas, Iowa to Oregon, Massachusetts to Colorado, etc.—we see how the debate and legislative agenda has been positively changed for LGBT Americans. Democrats in state houses, governors' mansions and in Congress are working to ensure a nation based on fairness and equality for all Americans. Together, their record shows that the best way to stand up for the LGBT community is to elect Democrats."

(From a Democratic National Committee fact sheet) WHAT A DIFFERENCE A YEAR MAKES!

Newly Elected Democratic Governors Leading on LGBT Issues:

- In Iowa, new Democratic Governor Chet Culver signed a state Employment Nondiscrimination Act (ENDA) into law.
- In Colorado, new Democratic Governor Bill Ritter signed a second-parent adoption bill and is expected to sign a state ENDA bill.
- In Ohio, new Democratic Governor Ted Strickland signed an executive order prohibiting discrimination against state employees based on sexual orientation or gender identity.

- In Oregon, newly-reelected Governor Democratic Ted Kulongoski signed domestic partner and state ENDA bills.
- In New Hampshire, newly-reelected Democratic Governor John Lynch signed a civil unions bill into law.
- In Massachusetts, new Democratic Governor Deval Patrick led the successful effort to keep an anti-marriage amendment off the ballot.

New Democratic State Legislatures Are Promoting Equality:

- In Oregon, Democrats took control of the State House and passed domestic partner and state ENDA bills.
- In Indiana, the new Democratic majority in the legislature defeated a proposed constitutional amendment to bar same-sex marriage.
- In New Hampshire, state Democrats—who won a majority in the state Senate and the first Democratic majority in the State House since the Civil War—passed a civil unions bill and defeated a proposed constitutional amendment that would have barred same-sex marriage.
- The Democratically-controlled Alaska legislature defeated a proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit domestic partner benefits for state employees, while Democratic state legislatures in Maryland and North Carolina defeated proposed constitutional amendments prohibiting same-sex marriage.

- The Democratic legislature in Vermont passed a bill prohibiting discrimination based on gender identity, while the Democratic legislature in Washington State passed a domestic partner bill.

FLASHBACK: One year ago this month, President Bush used the Rose Garden to promote a federal anti-marriage amendment.

Democratic Presidential Candidates are Standing Up for LGBT Americans:

- At the June 2007 Democratic candidate debate, every single Democratic Presidential candidate endorsed repealing the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy.
- At their June 2007 debate, not a single Republican candidate agreed to end "don't ask, don't tell," even if that policy led to the dismissal of openly gay Arab language translators in a time of war.
- In their responses to the Human Rights Campaign candidate questionnaire, every Democratic presidential candidate backed federal recognition for LGBT couples, inclusion of sexual orientation and gender identity in the Employment Non-Discrimination Act, and passage of the hate crimes prevention bill. ▼
